WE NOMINATE

Frederick Gore Richards, Professor of Naval Science and commanding officer of Princeton University's Naval ROTC Unit since the fall of 1944, who next June upon completing 39 years of distinguished service will retire from the United States Navy and accept one of the most demanding appointments imaginable—the direction of a secondary school for boys. The 66-year old veteran of two world wars, as able an administrator as the Armed Forces have ever detailed to Princeton, will succeed Robert Gordon McAllen as headmaster of The Hun School.

In entering upon a new career at a time when the majority of retiring four-striper are quite content to interpret the future in terms of the past, Richards is undertaking an assignment for which he is eminently well qualified. Twice a member of the faculty of the United States Naval Academy (1922-1924 and 1932-1934), he has devoted the past five years to preparing young men for the future, to integrating directives "from above" with civilian plans of study, to building a unit currently recognized as one of the nation's topnotch college training establishments.

It was along the salt rivers of Lincoln County, Maine, where his family moved from New York City early in the century, that Richards first discovered that he wanted to become a naval officer. He completed his Academy studies with the Class of 1915 and as a newly commissioned ensign was promptly assigned to the U. S. S. Arkansas, the venerable dreadnaught he was to command some three decades later during the assault on the Normandy Coast and the bombardment of heavily casemated Nazi installations at Cherbourg.

The recipient of the Silver and Bronze Stars as well as the Croix de Guerre in World War II, Richards drew a total of 16 years at sea, including three tours of destroyer duty and a stint as executive officer of the Battleship Colorado. His service ashore, before taking over his landlocked Princeton command, was highlighted by two years as chief of chart construction in the vitally important U. S. Hydrographic Office and wartime service in the Navy Department's Bureau of Ordnance.

For meritorious performance of duty over the course of years; for helping demonstrate the effectiveness of wholehearted cooperation between the so-called "military" and the so-called "civilian," for welcoming the opportunity to accept still another challenge; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

What Price Democracy? J. Stalin of Moscow and A. Lincoln of Illinois are hardly considered equals in the eyes of Americans. But when the National Society of Autograph Collectors held its annual auction here this week, a picture and signature of the Soviet dictator, and a picture and the famous Ohio draft order signed by the Great Emancipator went for the same price: $85.

Political Action. Tuesday's primary election looked to be of unusual interest, particularly for an off-year. At the State level, Republicans were ready to pick Governor Driscoll over Freeholder Robert L. Adams of Somerset County, a popular but little-known opponent. Both parties had a battle for three places on the Mercer board of freeholders, with one lone wolf facing three organization candidates. Strengthened by brackets on the ballot, the latter were good bets to win.

In Princeton township, Republicans John A. Stewart, the incumbent, and John H. Wallace, Jr. were likely to draw a record primary turnout. That was the only race at the local level—but Wednesday night of this week saw the Democrats begin their campaign for victory in the November races.

Their issues were intentionally broad: the need for "one Princeton," i.e., an end to "East-West" and "town-gown" factions, as well as borough-township conflicts; the importance of better low-cost housing; the gains to be realized from acting more quickly upon the recommendations of the planning board.

There was no indication that the forthcoming campaign would be one of sharp debate. On one subject, however, the Democrats needed merely to point to the record to question the direction of their opponents' thinking: a Republican majority had now voted for two through streets to Bayard Lane; candidate Griffing had stuck to his guns in favoring only the central route while candidate Voorhees stood diametrically opposed to him in switching his vote to the northern thoroughfare.

To provide results Tuesday night, Town Topics was set to repeat its service of last November, when over 200 calls were received. Facilities would again be made available by Burwick's, the complete telephonic secretarial service which is equipped to handle personal and business calls 24 hours a day. For returns — after 8 p.m. — call 840, 932, 1760, 2326 or 3747.

It's New to Us

Old Fence—New Uses. The Duxbury style post and rail fence is an old standby, but 1949 has brought two new twists to its perennial good looks and usefulness. One is a "cribbing," i.e., substitute for any sort of outdoor retaining wall; the other, a double-faced trellis fence.

First for the former—three (or presumably more if you want them) close-fitting rails are set into the vertical posts by means of the round-turned end construction which is the Duxbury style. As many of these posts and rails can be used as you need for the length of your retaining wall. They are put deep into the ground at a slight slant, sufficient to assure stability, and reinforced with a moisture-absorbing layer of crushed stone. Behind this is your earth, well held in place for a long time to come and most attractively bordered. The cribbing can be used for almost anything where you would normally use stone walls or concrete, (and much less expensively) and we're sure that with a little thought we could dream up some less obvious places than raised terraces, end-of-the-driveway parking space and sunken gardens.

When it comes to the trellis, its main advantages are two. Primarily, it costs approximately 80% of regular screen picket fencing; secondly, because of its horizontal construction, it looks equally attractive from either side. The posts are close enough together to provide privacy and still allow plants or vines to wind through and up them. When you see these comparatively low-priced Duxbury innovations at Rosedale Nurseries, 262 Alexander, you'll undoubtedly think of some spot around your house or garden that can't do without one or the other, or both!

Sports in Short

How Far Up? April is the month of destiny for Princeton's sophomore-studded baseball team. It may well be a year away from hitting the peak in the Eastern League but there are a sizeable number of fans who are eager to know just how far this Spring's vastly-improved aggregation will go. With over half its circuit schedule to play before the end of the month, Emerson Dickman's young Tiger nine will have the answer in the next fortnight.

Navy moves into University Field Saturday afternoon, with a game at Columbia on Tuesday and Dartmouth here next Friday. The following weekend will see a New England trip to face Harvard and Brown on successive days. That should tell the story—one way or the other.

The clash with the middies gives promise of being one of the best to be seen here in the post-war era. The Annapolis nine lost a 17-inning marathon to Harvard last week and must triumph to stay in the race it had hopes of winning. The visitors' Rensberger, who topped Bob Wolcott, 2-0, last year, will be pitted against him again.

The Tigers' chances of success depend largely on the ability of Ed Irvin, Jim Fairchild and Bill Prior to play. Irvin wrenched an ankle, Fairchild was hit on the wrist with a line drive and Prior was spiked early this week.

Thus it was a makeshift aggregation that fought to a 6-6 tie with Penn. But that eight-round draw preserved the Nassau record of having started seven games and lost only one of them. True, two have been ties, but the pitching has been strong and the defensive play generally on a high level. Witness the 2-0 and 10-0 wins over Villanova and Williams. The hitting is still spasmodic, but there have been six doubles, a triple and two homers in the last 20 innings. Mainly, however, it's the general heads-up play that has been so appealing to the good-sized crowds. There'll be more of that Saturday.

A Letter From Princeton Airport to YOU!

Dear Princetonian:

About a year ago, we wrote you to say that we were taking over the operation of Princeton Airport on the Somerville Road. We'd like to tell you what has been going on out here since then and invite you once again to come out and see for yourselves.

We have graduated a fair number of private pilots and have several new hard at work at attaining the commercial rating. We have spent a good deal of time selling flying to you Princetonians, and we think we have taken part of the mystery out of it for some. If you still think it is a dangerous, superman's pastime, come out and see some of your fellow-citizens—businessmen, housewives, teachers, ministers, and almost any other category you wish—flying our ships, or their own, as safely and expertly as they drive a car.

We have completed six new individual plane hangars, and we are glad to say that these—plus the four already existing—are not enough to take care of the private planes that have arrived since last year.

We are very gratified that the Civil Aeronautics Administration has awarded us approval as a certified flight school, with curricula covering private and commercial pilot courses. You who are veterans may take our flight courses under your G. I. Bill benefits. For your information, a flight school must pass stringent tests to gain this certification. We also have a CAA-approved maintenance shop equipped to perform all necessary mechanical work.

Again we affirm our faith in the future of private flying, and again we say that we will make no compromise with safe practice, spare no expense to see that all flight equipment is in good condition. We are doing our best to hold the cost of flying down, and have not changed our rates in the face of rising costs since last year. But we will cut no corners just to cut prices. We feel we are giving first quality service at a reasonable price.

So here is another invitation to come out and see us. And remember, it takes the average person only seven to ten hours to solo a plane. This is the air age! Get acquainted with it! Learn to fly!

Sincerely yours,

William H. Snow

See it by all means.

My Dream Is Yours (Thurs., Fri.,

gloss over some, not all, of the rough spots.

THE GARDEN

Tarzan's Magic Fountain (Thurs.,

Easter Parade (Mon., Tues.,

cludes Fred Astaire, Ann Miller story of a dance team active in 1910 is secondary but the mood is one of general enjoyment.

Criss Cross (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) is the apt title for a gangster film in which there is so much doubledeal-fusion often reigns. But the acting by Burt Lancaster, Yvonne de noteworthy and the story has a good pace.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

lovely handmade copper line at The Clothes Line, it has been somewhat depleted; but if you hurry, you can still find any number of fascinating objects for equally fascinating prices. Pins start at $1.75, earrings at $2; bracelets at $2.25, necklaces at $7, all plus the inevitable tax.

We can't begin to go into the variety of it—sufficient to say that shapes go from double raised flames, horses heads, butterflies, lily of the valley shaped chains, bars and maple leaf patterns. You can see them all for yourself, but we'll pass on a bit of the background provided by the maker herself which we found quite intriguing.

"Our jewelry is made of the finest copper, and the pieces are cut individually with a jeweler's saw—motifs chased in a pitch block, soldered, put through a series of flames and acids, hung on trees in the sun, buffed and finally lacquered with the finest jeweler's lacquer to prevent tarnishing. . . 'Gret Barkin' jewelry is the work of individual artists rather than a commercial crew of workmen whose 'hand-made' usually means reaching up and pulling down levers and stamp-out designs. We use a chasing tool as a painter would a brush, and each intricate marking on the metal represents a blow. At present, our workshop is an old chicken coop, a rain barrel, our source of water; as to our methods and techniques . . . we work, by and large, in much the same manner as did the old silversmith of centuries ago."

Miniature Record Albums. We haven't much space to go into these new arrivals at The Music Shop, but the mere fact that they are there should be enough. Brown, leatherish, gold-decorated albums, each of which holds 10 of the RCA 45 r.p.m.'s, the Columbia 7-inchers, or children's records, are compact and nicely priced at 39 cents.
